As the result of injuries received in a fall the night of December 23, Col. Samuel Newell Hoyt, for nearly a third of a century a well-known resident of Washington, died at a late hour last night. He was the intimate friend of "Kit" Carson, Gen. "Sam" Houston, "Bill" Williams and other familiar figures of the west of a half century ago. He was one of them, and it was a pleasure to hear him relate the stories of actual experiences in those perllous times.

In his early boyhood Col. Hoyt removed to Pike county, Ill., with his parents. He lived there on a farm until the outbreak of the Mexican war, when he enlisted as a private in the 1st Illinois Volunteer Infantry. His regiment was in Gen. Taylor's division, and he participated in the battles in which the troops under "Old Rough and Ready" were engaged.

Rescues Kidnaped Prisoner.

Col. Hoyt attained considerable distinction at the close of the Mexican war by the rescue by the regiment under his command of a granddaughter of Gen. His wealth at one time was estimated at $2,000,000. He was of an adventurous nature and he knew the west in those days better, perhaps, than did any other person. In the fiftles Col. He served with this regiment until the close of the war.

During the latter part of February, 1865, Col. Hoyt had a most remarkable experi-ence, which, viewed in the light of later events, sounds almost prophetic. He had occasion to come to Washington to see President Lincoln. He went to the White House, where he was a familiar figure, having known the President in his boyhood in Illinois. A guard was stationed at the President's door, but Col. Hoyt passed him and went into the executive's private office. Mr. Lincoln was asleep, but just as his the slight noise. In the semi-darkness of the room, for the curtains were drawn, he was a towering figure. In a voice of thunder he exclaimed: "Who are you?"

Col. Hoyt, in some trepidation, stated his "Ah," said Lincoln, with evident relief, "I was almost frightened. I have had the nightmare and dreamed that I was being

Became a Resident of Washington. At the close of the war Col. Hoyt went west for a time. He had much success in prospecting and was soon accounted a fair-ly wealthy man. SAN TOY.-The Augustin Daly Musical Company will be seen at the Columbia Theater next week, commencing Monday night, in that sparkling success, "San Toy," which won instant favor during its long run at Daly's Theater, New York. It is one of the best of the lighter musical entertainments we have had in years. The production is remarkable in many respects. It is gorgeously staged, and enlists the services of a large and capable company and an enlarged orchestra. Samuel Collins is seen as Li, the mandarin's private secretary. It is probably one of the best characters this cast is exceptionally strong and contains many names well and favorably known in the light musical field. WILLIAM FAVERSHAM.-William Faversham, whose many triumphs during his term as leading man of Charles Frohman's Empire Theater Company have made him familiar and popular with theatergoers, will make his first appearance in this city as a star at the New National Theater next night, under the management of Charles Frohman, in a new play by Gerald Du Maurier, entitled "A Royal Rival." Mr. Faversham appeared for over 100 nights in New York, the play duplicating the success it had previously won at the Duke of York's Theater in London. From the time he originally joined the Empire Theater Company, nine years ago, his advancement in popularity and professional worth has developed consistently and has been governed entirely by merit. The story is a romantic and spirited one, full of excit-ing incidents and told in a terse, straightforward style. It is in four acts. Mr. Frohman has surrounded his new star with a number of the best players from his large forces and has given the play a handsome and elaborate setting. In the cast are Miss Julie Opp, an able actress, who is regarded as one of the most beautiful women on the stage, who came over from London especially for this engagement: Edwin Stevens (of the Empire Theater Company), Prince Lloyd, Snitz Edwards, James Kearney, N L. Jelenko, Jos. Weber, Miss Maggie Halloway Fisher, Miss Claire McDowell and under Col. Hoyt's command were repulsed others. Seats will go on sale tomorrow

LADY WINDEMERE'S FAN .- At the Lafayette Square next week the Bellows Stock Company will lightly turn from Shakespearean tragedy to modern society drama and produce "Lady Windemere's Fan," one of the most brilliant plays of its class ever written. The story told by the play has to do with foibles of London's ultra-fashionable society, and although for the major part told in a comedy vein it grows at times intensely dramatic. Its most attractive feature is, perhaps, the brilliancy of its dialogue. From the opening to the closing line it is fairly jeweled with dainty wittleisms and sparkling epigrams. In this respect "Lady Windemere's Fan" may be truthfully said to have no superior among plays of its class. "Lady Windemere's Fan" has had a brilliant record. Originally produced in London, it created almost sation in the English metropolis, and later scored a long run in New York. Like most society comedy dramas, it is well adapted to stock purposes, and it is anticipated that its production next week will add still another success to the long list already scored by Mr. Bellows during the present season.

POLITE VAUDEVILLE. - Chase's gram next week in celebration of the third anniversary of polite vaudeville as originally conceived by Mr. Chase will comprise the Seven Picchiani Sisters, the drill of the White Hussars, Frank Lincoln, Gertrude for another week. For the Picchiani Sisters the stage is set as a ball room, in which the sisters perform their feats in full evening dress. "The White Hussars" is another Keith production, employing twenty-four young women. Frank Lincoln is a humorist of considerable renown abroad. Mansfield and Wilbur, two of the foremost sketch players, will present their successful farce, "A Bird and a Bottle." Willard Simms and Catherine Linyard, another talented and popular pair of funmakers, will offer for laughing purposes only "Flinder's Furnished Flats." Angie Norton, formerly of Grant and Norton, will have a conversational act of anecdote and wit. Mr. and Mrs. Swickard give operatic travesty, and are well accredited. The Pageant of the Nations and the Venetian Ballet will hold over another week in response to popular demand. The sale of seats has begun.

AT CRIPPLE CREEK .- A play new to Washington, the stirring melodrama, "At Cripple Creek," will be pre-sented Monday night at the Academy of Music. The scenes of the play are laid in a mining camp of the Rocky Mountains, and it is thought b ymany to be among the best and most correct pictures of western life ever given the American stage, heaviest productions ever carried. leading man is Frederick Mosley, and lit-tle Annie Buckley will enact the chief femand Edward Meas.

BIJOU BURLESQUE AND OLIO .- For the next week's offering Manager Schles-inger has arranged what he believes to be a bill of vaudeville of supreme merit. It will be headed by the Russell Brothers, who will for this once put away their old act, "The Irish Servant Girls," and present their latest sketch, called "A Romance of New Jersey," written especially for them by George Cohan. In addition to the Russells, the piece will call for the services of two other players, and it is expected that the New Jersey romance will prove a splend!d vehicle for these two well-known vaudeville performers. Jen-nings and Alto will present a comedy sketch, in which Miss Alto will offer sev-eral ideas of her own as to the manner in which the plane should be played. Vera King will sing some of the newest songs, Girard Leon and his trio of performing donkeys will also contribute mirth to the St. Luke's P. E. This method has been in vogue for the past seventeen years to my personal knowledge, I having been employed in my present capacity for more than that length of time, and a large number of the soft maples on the streets previous to 1884 bore evidences of having been thus treated before my incumbency. This is no experiment, but has been practiced here on the older trees of that kind at various times since 1872, when tree planting on the streets was first undertaken in a systematic way by the District. Trees grown on the streets of a city where the roadways are paved mostly with as phalt and the sidewalks with asphalt, both impervious to water, are under entirely different conditions to those standing in fields or wide parkings.
